

Missouri Home Energy Certification (MHEC)

MHEC is a voluntary statewide program created to encourage homeowners to make energy efficient retrofits by recognizing the value of these features with a state-issued Gold or Silver Certificate.

Why Should My Home Achieve MHEC Certification?

A home's increased energy efficiency results in reduced home operational costs and superior energy performance.

This achievement is recognized through the MHEC program to highlight the value of the home while saving you money.

Deduct Energy Efficient Upgrades

Eligible taxpayers can deduct the cost of Home Energy Assessments and energy efficient improvements using the Missouri personal income tax deduction. Taxpayers can deduct up to $1,000 for an individual and $2,000 per year for filing a joint return (Form MO-HEA).

Steps to Certify My Home

Have your home assessed by a Missouri Certified Home Energy Assessor.

Check with local utilities for offers and rebates that may help you achieve efficiency goals.

Implement recommended energy efficiency measures to your home.

Work with your Home Energy Auditor to submit an application with the Missouri Division of Energy.

Deduct home assessment and improvement costs using the MO-HEA form on your Missouri personal income taxes.

Seal the Deal

Both new and existing single-family homes in Missouri are eligible for the MHEC program. An eligible home can achieve one of two levels of certification under this program: Gold level or Silver level.
